

Triton Regional High School student and ICS Alumni Erik Siebert was singled out recently for his creative talent as winner in a national No Name-Calling Week contest. Siebert's poem placed second in the country out of more than 1,000 entries. This eighth annual Creative Expression Contest encourages kindergarten through grade 12 students to illustrate through artistic expression how name-calling has affected them and their peers.

It's
hard
when your getting
bullied
and your friends
turn their
backs
on you
and it
keeps
getting
worse.
Soon
I'll be
the only one in the crowd
with no
friends while
everyone
watches me
fade
away
Would
you
ever
help
someone
like me
